We Want You to Meet . . .

Paul L. Wiley, assistant professor of English . . . piquant humorist, discerning critic, talented writer . . . translator, traveler, broadcaster.

In 1935 Paul Wiley toured Europe and studied in Germany where, as he says, he had the "dubious honor of seeing Hitler face to face." Returning to the United States, he attended Stanford University, graduating in 1942. He taught at Stanford, writing and publishing one-act plays before joining the faculty here. He has also done considerable German - American translating and written reviews for leading papers.

Apart from his regular courses, Mr. Wiley is in charge of the English classes for foreign students on the campus . . . plays a "mean" game of handball . . . and each Tuesday at 2:00 P. M. conducts the popular College of the Air feature, "Books of Today."
